

Lloyd George "In the Pink" as He Leaves London with Family for Visit in America

London, Sept. 29.—Former Premier David Lloyd George, accompanied by his wife and daughter, departed today for America amidst scenes of enthusiasm that recalled the days when he was in the heyday of his power.

"I appreciate your kindness in safely seeing me off the premises," shouted the former premier from the car window in answer to cheers of the crowd. "Take good care of the old country while I am gone."

The cheering gave way to laughter. The former premier received an unprecedented send off. The streets abutting the railway station were jammed. All the liberal members of the old Lloyd George government were on hand, including Winston Churchill, foreign Irish Secretary H. H. Greenwood and Thomas Macnamara.

The platform of the train shed was packed with personal friends. Thousands of office workers delayed getting to their offices in hope of getting a glimpse of the Welsh statesman.

The saloon of the railway car occupied by the Lloyd George family was piled high with fruit and flowers sent by friends and admirers from all parts of Great Britain.

Mrs. Lloyd George wore a blue

traveling costume and a brown hat. Miss Megan Lloyd George, the daughter, was dressed in navy blue.

The former premier sported a new traveling coat and looked to be in the pink of condition. He was in the best of spirits and joked merrily

WALTON POLICY BEFORE VOTERS NEXT TUESDAY

Military Rule Will Be Maintained Until After Court Action

ELECTION IS LEGAL

County Judges Testify Justice Hampered in Oil Region

Oklahoma City, Sept. 29.—Governor Walton intends to maintain the full force of the military and martial law in his state until after Tuesday, the day on which his career as chief executive will come before the tribunal of the people for approval or repudiation at the polls.

In an interview at the executive mansion, the governor tacitly acknowledged that he expects a statewide special election to be held or attempted Oct. 2, at which the foremost question will be impeachment or endorsement of his administration.

Coinciding with the state supreme court ruling assuring the legality of the special election call, the report spread that Governor Walton had withdrawn from his militant policy and would relax the pressure of military control. Asked pointedly if that were his intention he replied: "Not until after Tuesday, if then."

Pressed further to explain the significance of singling out Oct. 2 as the deadline for need of full martial law, he would not be drawn out and refused to answer other questions. However, he did announce that military occupation has been extended to the Cushing district of Payne county, "because justice could not be meted out there and prosecutions of criminal acts of the Ku Klux Klan could not be obtained." He said that Klan defiance had nearly resulted in a riot.

Troops were ordered dispatched to the Cushing district, an oil region, on the testimony of District Judge C. C. Smith of the Payne county judicial district and County Judge Brown Moore. They testified that justice was being hampered and prosecutions curtailed. A military court of inquiry will be set up at Cushing, the governor said.

Meanwhile, there has been a shake-up in the governor's military staff. Adjutant General Markham asked for a 10-day leave of absence because of ill health. Colonel Key, commander of the military zone of Oklahoma City, and Colonel Sledge, his aide, were relieved of duty and permitted to return to their homes. Governor Walton declined to comment on this procedure. Colonel Charles F. Barrett, formerly General Markham's aide, has been made temporary adjutant general. Brigadier General Charles E. McPherrin will have direct charge of military operations.

OVERCOME DISTRUST SAYS MANUFACTURER

Columbus, Sept. 29.—George M. Verity, Middletown, president of the American Rolling Mills Company, addressing the Columbus Chamber of Commerce forum last night, stressed the responsibility of each community in solving its social and economic problems.

"Jealousy and distrust between people in different walks of life must be overcome by bringing them together in a common interest," he said.

OFFICERS MEET

Columbus, Sept. 29.—Approximately 500 army reserve officers attending the convention of the Reserve Officers' Association here this afternoon participated in the ceremonies marking the presentation of divisional and organization flags of Ohio outfits to the state at the state house.

The reservists this morning were in business session and discussed army redistricting, army legislation, dual commissions and appropriations.

SUGAR MERCHANT DIES.

Cincinnati, Sept. 29.—Harry L. Laws, 71, head of the firm of James H. Laws and Company, commission merchants, and formerly one of the largest sugar factors in Louisiana, died from a fractured skull a few hours after being struck by an automobile last night.

with friends. He said he had a great stock of books with him and was anticipating the greatest experience of his life in seeing America.

As the train steamed out there was an extraordinary scene. Hundreds rushed down the platform straining their eyes for a final view of the ex-premier. There was a mighty shout of "good bye and God be with you."

Before the train departed Mr. Lloyd George skillfully sidestepped his first opportunity to get into an American controversy. Just as the locomotive was beginning to move one enthusiast rushed up shouting:

"If Americans say they won't the war you be sure to tell them you did it."

Mr. Lloyd George laughed but made no reply.

Mrs. Lloyd George intimated to friends that she is going to "boss" the American tour of her famous husband. She is not going to allow him to wear out his strength. She especially is putting on the breaks regarding speeches. She said she would do her utmost to prevent him from talking to small audiences but will not try to prevent him from addressing big gatherings.

PRESIDENT TO SEEK FURTHER ADVICE ON GUARANTY SECTION

Say Coolidge Is Only "Considering" Freight Rate Question

Washington, Sept. 29.—President Coolidge is considering the question of making recommendation to congress concerning section 15-a, the so-called guaranty section of the Esch-Cummings transportation act, but as yet has not come to any conclusion.

This was stated officially at the white house. It was said that the president conferred with the railroad executives and representatives of organized labor regarding the matter, and plans to seek other advice from similar sources and from members of congress before making a decision.

Section 15-a of the Esch-Cummings act has been the chief bone of contention throughout the agitation, chiefly in the agricultural states of the west, for repeal or at least drastic modification of the railroad law. The demand for repeal of the guaranty section has become widespread among the farmers and their representatives in congress. It also is one of the principal planks in the platform of the LaFollette "progressive" bloc. The Democrats, too, have demanded its removal.

Those joining in this demand take the position that while there is no means provided to insure the carrying out of the intent of that section, it nevertheless stands as an intended guarantee, and that it is responsible for the president high freight rates, to which the farmers attribute their major troubles.

Section 15-a is the rate making part of the railroad act. It directs the rates is that which obtained prior to maintain a level of rates that will insure the roads a return of 5 1/2 per cent on their valuation. It also gives the commission the right to add one-half of one per cent to the return, making the total a maximum of six per cent, in its discretion. The commission has fixed upon 5 1/2 per cent as the basis on which rate schedules are determined.

The view of those who insist upon repealing the section is that the fair and proper method of determining rates is that which obtained prior to the enactment of the Esch-Cummings act. Under that plan the commission's directions were to provide rate levels that would insure to the respective roads a reasonable return.

PROPOSE REVIVAL OF GRAIN CORPORATION TO AID FARMERS

If Legal Barriers Are Removed Government Would Purchase 200,000,000 Bushels at Rate of $1.50 a Bushel.

Washington, Sept. 29.—Revival of the United States grain corporation with authority to purchase 200,000,000 bushels of wheat in the open market is the plan most favored by the Coolidge administration for the relief of the agriculture industry, it was learned today.

The purchase price would be $1.50 a bushel if the plan is finally adopted. Its supporters contend it would bring immediate stabilization to the wheat market and prove immediate financial relief for poverty stricken agriculturists.

Legal barriers, however, may prevent revival of the corporation, as it existed during the war, in which case a semi-governmental agency would be created to purchase the wheat with federal funds. It is understood the department of justice now is studying the legal aspects of the plan with a view of adjusting President Coolidge whether he has sufficient emergency powers to meet the situation.

Legislators and spokesmen for farm organizations have favored revival of the grain corporation over all other relief plans in recent conferences with the president. Advocates of this plan urged it upon the president as the most available means of providing "immediate relief for stricken farmers. It would have to be followed by permanent relief legislation in the next congress. The president is expected to announce his decision early next month.

Various steps in this relief plan, as outlined to International News Service by government officials are as follows:

- 1 Revival of the United States Grain Corporation by Presidential proclamation to meet a "national emergency" among the farmers.
- 2 Authority conferred upon the corporation by the president to purchase 200,000,000 bushels of wheat

THIRTY PERSONS ARE RESCUED FROM BURNING BUILDING

Cleveland, Sept. 29.—Thirty persons, about half of them women, were rescued from the Klein apartments in downtown Cleveland today, when fire broke out shortly after midnight. Police and firemen joined in carrying the tenants off the building down ladders to safety below. One man was seriously burned about the face.

The fire was discovered by Mrs. Marion McCarrell, of Columbus, who was visiting her mother, Mrs. Francis Williams. The two women called the fire department and then went from apartment to apartment awakening other tenants.

James Dunn, 32, opening the door leading to the hall was met with a sheet of flames, and badly burned. However he climbed down a ladder placed by firemen to the street two stories below.

The damage was estimated at $6,000.

JUDGE DENOUNCES DRY OFFICERS AS PARASITES FRIDAY

Cincinnati, Sept. 29.—Denouncing as "parasites" and "panderers," the special dry agents appointed by the mayors and justices of villages surrounding Cincinnati, to raid cafes and homes in the city and hale their prisoners to the village courts, Municipal Judge Joseph H. Woeste yesterday sentenced A. N. Pierson and William E. Kuehling, deputy marshals of the Milford liquor court, to 30 days in jail and fined them each $50 and costs. The dry agents were convicted of having assaulted a 17 year old boy in a raid on the grocery store of his father.

"Pierson, you look like a young man, and before this unjust law was passed earned an honest living," said the judge. "But the advent of this law changed things. It has made a parasite out of you and men like you. I can only say the same thing will happen in Ohio that happened in New York. The enforcement of the dry laws will be repealed. The fee-splitting policy as provided under the Miller act, is certainly unjust and wrong."

GIRLS WAS MURDERED

Millville, N. J., Sept. 29.—Emma Dixon was slain in a struggle with another human being, not accidentally killed by an automobile. That decision was given by Coroner's Physician Wainwright after her body had been exhumed at Port Elizabeth and an autopsy had been performed. Dr. Wainwright said the back of her skull had been crushed by repeated blows of a round, blunt instrument. This eliminates the so-called murder plank as the death weapon. No bruises or abrasions were found below the waist. The bones of the right wrist had been twisted out of position.

NUMBER OF DEAD IN RAIL DISASTER UNDETERMINED MAY REACH MORE THAN 50

Cessation of Rainfall Saturday Expected to Result In Successful Efforts To Raise Submerged Cars From Stream

Casper, Wyo., Sept. 29.—With the number of dead still undetermined in Wyoming's most appalling railroad disaster in years, dawn today brought hope that rescue workers would be able to reach the submerged cars of Chicago, Burlington and Quincy passenger train No. 30, which plunged into the raging torrent of Cole creek when a bridge across that stream near Lockett, 15 miles east of here, collapsed late Thursday night.

Railroad officials still clung to their belief that not more than 25 victims are in the watery grave of Cole creek, but statements of rescued passengers indicate that between 40 and 55 met their death when the flood waters of the surging stream sealed them in the toppled over passenger cars.

With rain still falling and the swift current lapping the portions of the cars still protruding from the water, all efforts at removing the bodies were abandoned late last night and because of the fear that the coaches might break and the bodies float downstream if derricks and hoisting equipment were attached to them it was decided to wait until the waters in the normally dry creek had subsided before further attempts to take out the victims were made.

Rain ceased falling early this morning and at dawn indications were that flood waters during the day would subside to a point that would permit entrance to the submerged coaches of the ill fated train.

The locomotive and smoker lie completely submerged, and it is feared the later holds many dead.

The day coach, with but one end sticking out of the water is also believed to contain many bodies.

It is feared that all changes of identification will have passed unless the bodies are recovered today as they have now been in the water more than 30 hours.

Dr. J. F. O'Donnell, Burlington surgeon, said this morning the speed of the stream which has been like a veritable Niagara, will so mar the faces of those in the water and result in such decomposition that even embalming will be difficult.

Two bodies from the wreckage, express messenger D. E. Schultz, of Glen Rock, had been identified early today. Two bodies had been washed ashore at Glen Rocks, and reports, unconfirmed, were received from the vicinity of the wreck that several bodies had been seen floating down the Platte river, of which Cole creek is a

DEATH AND DAMAGE FOLLOW STORMS IN 3 WESTERN STATES

Omaha, Neb. Sept. 29.—Seventeen known dead and property damage running into thousands of dollars are the toll of violent storms accompanied by cloudbursts and floods in three middle western states. In several localities the storms still were raging early today.

Mill creek, near Louisville, Neb., claimed 12 lives when it swept away a house and drowned all of its occupants. The creek, a tributary of the Platte river, was swollen to flood proportions by a cloudburst and swept out of its banks, covering a large part of the village of Louisville.

Five persons were killed and a number of others reported injured when a tornado descended on Council Bluffs, Ia., and leveled many buildings within an area of two blocks.

Another severe storm was reported to have struck Oshkosh, a small Nebraska community.

Wyoming and sections of Iowa and Kansas are heaviest sufferers in the storms. Scores of bridges were swept away in Wyoming and long stretches of railroad track washed out.

At Council Bluffs 35 houses were reported wrecked. Firemen were called out to rescue occupants. The full force of the storm descended on Tostezin street, wreaking havoc between Graham and South Avenues.

The city gas plant was in the path of the storm and was partially destroyed, crippling service.

Railway schedules are seriously impaired, crippling service. In some sections of Nebraska water is six inches deep on the tracks. Hail is also adding to the damage. Crop losses will not be great, as most of the grain has been harvested.

FUR STORE LOOTED

Canton, O., Sept. 29.—Held up at the point of a revolver by three supposed customers here, Mrs. Annie Gerstenfeld, wife of the proprietor of a fur company, was chloroformed and the store looted. More than 150 fur coats, with an estimated value of $75,000, were carried away in an automobile. In addition to selecting the best furs in the store, the thieves ransacked the safe and secured $275.

According to Burlington officials a check up of their records showed that there were approximately 76 persons on the train when it left Casper. Thirty-four have been accounted for, leaving 42 believed dead. This report was confirmed by some of the surviving passengers who declared that the train carried its lightest load in months when it started on its fatal journey.

It was said however that several passengers were on the train who had not purchased tickets at Casper and it is feared that the final list of dead may go over the fifty mark.

A list of those missing and believed dead follows:

- R. L. Glerhart, Denver.
- O. H. Gans, Denver.
- M. D. Montgomery, Denver.
- Train Conductor, G. W. Goff.

COOLIDGE HOPEFUL EUROPE WILL WORK OUT OWN SALVATION

Washington, Sept. 29.—Officials and diplomats, from President Coolidge down, are more hopeful that Europe will work out a solution of her politico-economic problem. As each passing day brings no news of any uprising against the central government in Berlin, the belief gains strength that Chancellor Stresemann and his ministry will be able to put into operation some plan for the economic rehabilitation of Germany. No matter what may be the view held in Paris, the practically unanimous opinion here is that, unless Germany is restored as an economic nation, Europe can not recover.

The proclamation putting an official end to passive resistance, it is pointed out, relieves the Berlin government of a great financial load that was aggravating an already embarrassing situation. Relieved of this burden, it is pointed out, Chancellor Stresemann may proceed with some plan for stabilizing the mark.

RIGHT AND WRONG COLORS DESCRIBED BY ART LECTURER

Yellow Springs, Sept. 29.—Theodore H. Pond, of the Dayton Institute of Art, delivered his fourth public lecture in aesthetics at Antioch College, Thursday night, before a class of sixty students and residents of Yellow Springs.

Mr. Pond described the right and wrong colors in costume, interior decoration, and architecture. He pointed out that color has been used since the earliest ages, although modern costumers are not so lavish in its use. They go to old paintings for color combinations but they could get better effects from nature. He illustrated with slides the return to color in modern architecture. The lecture was concluded with pictures of Indian pottery and Oriental rugs.

AGENTS PRESENTED AT THANK OFFERING MEETING.

A splendid pagant, in connection with the annual Thankoffering service of the Woman's Missionary Society of the First United Presbyterian church was presented before a good-sized audience, in the church parlors, Friday evening.

Mrs. A. M. Patterson, president of the Society, presided and made the announcements, followed by devotional. Three little girls, Frances Marshall, Sarah Davidson, and Mabel Wheeler, sang a psalm of thanksgiving, followed by prayer.

"Miss Thankless Becomes Miss Thankful" was the title of the Thankoffering pagant, with Mrs. C. S. Frazier taking the part of Miss Thankful, representing the Spirit of Thankoffering. She was seated on a dais, dressed in flowing white robes and a golden crown on her head.

At her feet were the Blessings she brings—Parents, Doctor, Nurse, Country, Church, School, College and above all, the gifts of Jesus Christ. The various Blessings were represented by little boys and girls, each holding an illuminated placard.

Mrs. William Nash, as Miss Thankless, presented herself to the Spirit of Thankoffering, asking, "Why should I give a Thankoffering to help others, when I need all my money for myself?" The Spirit of Thankoffering answered her question by presenting through the pages, Emily Dean and Marjorie Chandler, the various needs of the world, Indian, Freedmen, Mountain Whites, Italian, Hindu, Sudanese, Abyssinian, Egyptian and East Indian, who were represented by the young people of the congregation, and who rehearsed their privations to Miss Thankless.

She is thoroughly convinced that she has been wrong, and enthusiastically acknowledges her selfishness, and all join in a prayer of Thanksgiving.

Twenty-nine took part in the pagant. After the pagant, Mrs. Carl Smith sang, "The Earth is the Lord's," the 24th psalm. The Rev. Mr. Lytle, made a short talk, and closed the program with prayer and benediction.

K. OF C. OFFER CASH REWARD TO REFUTE ALLEGED FALSE OATH

It is understood the announcement of the reward, which is offered in an effort to stop what members of the organization say is a false and baseless statement, is being made all over the country. The reward offered in this section is in the form of cash which is said to be on deposit in a London, Ohio, bank.

ROBBERS OF DELCO PLANT CAUGHT BY POLICE WITH LOOT

Dayton, Sept. 29.—Three men who held up and robbed the paymaster's office at the Delco-Light plant, Amelia and Taylor streets, of $5400 about 5 o'clock Friday afternoon, were arrested an hour and a half later by police in a house at 110 Wortman avenue, and confessed to the robbery.

A travelling bag containing their spoils, $5400 in 162 pay envelopes was seized.

The men under arrest are Steve Vargo, 35, of 221 Troy street, Dayton; George Miller, 23, of 2723 Park avenue, Detroit and George Smith, alias Thornton, giving Toledo as his home.

All available city and county police were watching streets and roads in Dayton and Montgomery county within a few minutes after the robbery. A squad of detectives and plain clothes men was held in readiness at police headquarters to answer any report that the robbers had been sighted, and descriptions of the robbers, and their car had been telephoned to police in all neighboring cities.

About 6:30 o'clock police received a tip that three men, one carrying a travelling bag were seen entering the house at 110 Wortman street.

A squad of police and detectives surprised the men in the house. The bag containing the money was found behind a table. Only three pay envelopes were missing.

According to the bandits' story Vargo who had worked at the Delco for a year as a screw machine operator, was the inside man on the robbery. He planned it with Smith, a former friend in Toledo, to whom he communicated the pay system at the Delco. Miller and Smith said they came to Dayton in a Cadillac which they stole in Toledo. They reached Dayton at noon Friday.

Vargo drew his week's pay at noon and did not work in the afternoon, getting in touch with his companions.

They arranged the robbery to take place after the girl employes had drawn their pay and before the men were released from work. E. H. Peiffer of Miamisburg, the paymaster and E. H. Sikorski the assistant were alone in the paymaster's booth.

Miller and Smith drove to the Taylor street entrance to the factory and parked in front of the main gates. After the girls had passed through they jumped from their car and with drawn revolvers ran through the factory grounds to the building where Pay Station No. 4 is located, and passed down a corridor to the paymaster's window. Forcing the paymaster and his assistant to put up their hands they raked the envelopes into a travelling bag and ran back to their car.

After the robbery Miller and Smith drove to 221 Troy street where Vargo roomed, and changed their clothes. Vargo took them to 110 Wortman street where they were refused rooms by the landlady. They were sitting on a couch discussing plans when arrested.

BURGLARS GET $18 FROM REGISTER AT CRITERION FRIDAY

Burglars who entered The Criterion clothing store, South Detroit Street, early Friday night, after removing the iron grating covering a basement window in the rear and prying open the window, took $18 from the cash register. Nothing else was disturbed.

A large box containing a shipment of hose was found pulled against the window, but its not known whether the thieves attempted to pull the box through the window or used it to stand on. The iron grating after being removed from its position, was placed in the enclosure about the window which is eight feet deep, and was evidently used as a ladder.

Frank Hustmyer, proprietor of the Smoke House adjoining the Criterion, noticed the grating had been removed from the window which is directly behind his place of business, after he returned from supper, about seven o'clock, and notified Harold M. Owens, manager of The Criterion.

The store was closed for the day at six o'clock and Mr. Owens was in the store again at 6:50. The robbery had evidently taken place between six and 6:50 and it is believed that Mr. Owens entering the store may have frightened the intruder away.

Patrolman Simms investigated but found no clue to the burglar. The store has been robbed twice before.

HEAVY FINES GIVEN AND DRY OFFICERS SCORED BY JUDGE

Cincinnati, Sept. 29.—Scenes virtually without parallel in the history of Cincinnati courts took place when Municipal Judge Woeste fined dry agents of the Loveland, Ohio, court and others on various charges. A severe denunciation of the practices of village dry agents preceded the announcement of sentences and was greeted by cheers from spectators.

Harry G. Miller, chief dry agent of the Loveland Court and former police judge of that village, was fined $500 and sentenced to 30 days in jail on two of the three charges against him. These two charges were possession of liquor and intoxication. A charge of carrying concealed weapons, coupled with disorderly conduct, was dismissed. Joseph Yaffee, Miller's assistant was fined $500 and costs on charges of possessing liquor. Edwin Kibby, former police telephone operator and a former Loveland dry agent, also was fined $500 on a charge of possessing liquor.

The trials and sentences grew out of a raid on an apartment which, Kibby admitted, he occupied.

Other persons arrested during the raid, which was made as the result of what was described as "riotous revelry" taking place in the apartment, drew "costs suspended."

LET US BE FAIR WITH RELIGION.

Occasionally a person who has been a church member is taken in crime and there are always many to cry: "Religion is a failure." No so. This person has simply been acting the hypocrite. In his or her case, as we often say about vaccination, "Religion didn't take."

The charge that a so-called christian had fallen from grace is often a great source of grief to relatives, and of much regret to fellow church members, but Religion itself should not be held up in decision. It only proves that the person was a "black sheep" when he or she should have been a white one.

Coleridge, one of the wisest men who ever lived, at the end of his life summed up his conclusions as follows:

"I have known what the enjoyments and advantages of this life are, and what the more refined pleasures which learning and intellectual powers can bestow, and with all the experience which more than three score years can give, I now, on the eve of my departure, declare to you that health is a great blessing—competence, obtained by honorable industry, a great blessing—and a great blessing it is to have kind, faithful and loving friends and relatives—but the greatest of all blessings, as it is the most ennobling of all privileges, is indeed to be a christian."

Re-read that. It certainly could scarcely be more fully expressive of all that is desirable at the end of a long life.

If we want to be honest with Religion, let us not charge it with the downfall of every professed christian, but let us see what proportion of christians go wrong—that is the per cent, as compared with those who have not classed themselves as such. We are sure that nobody will claim that more than one tenth of registered church members are found in the lists of law breakers. If this be so then, we are to conclude that ninety are faithful to their vows—ninety per cent. Surely this large per cent must be conformed with, and christianity be not charged as a failure every time a "black sheep" of the fold plays false to his vows.

THE PRESIDENT'S BURDEN.

The physical breakdown of President Wilson and the lamented death of President Harding during their respective terms of office have awakened us all to a realization of the burden of responsibility and labor that our chief magistrates are called upon to bear. It has been said by those who are familiar with the facts that that burden is twice as great today as it was when McKinley was President and probably four times as heavy as it was in the leisurely days before the Civil War. Only a man who is comparatively young, physically in perfect condition and temperamentally placid can be expected to take the strain without unfortunate results.

It is generally admitted, therefore, that we must find some way to lighten the tasks of the President. He must be relieved from the load of routine and detail that now occupies so much of his time and demands so much of his nervous energy. Senator Edge of New Jersey wants the duty of administering the budget, which was recently added to the President's responsibilities, transferred to the Vice President. Mr. John Brooks Leavitt, an eminent lawyer of New York, believes that the second article of the Constitution, properly construed, would now permit the President to delegate to the Vice President any duties that he found himself unable to perform for any reason—provided of course that Congress first passed a statute authorizing him to do so. Other men say that a law limiting a President to a single term would help. Mr. Walter F. Brown, who at President Harding's request, framed a plan for the reorganization of the executive departments that was laid before Congress last year, advises the creation of a new office—that of assistant to the President, who should be authorized, under the President's direction, to sign papers, reply to letters and attend to the tedious and exhausting interviews with Congressmen on the eternal subject of appointments to office. It is Mr. Brown's opinion that a President cannot now give more than two hours a day to the really important business of his office, so overburdened is he with the mass of social and administrative detail that has accumulated upon his shoulders.

Something must be done, and quickly, to reorganize the present executive system. In the meantime the people themselves should help their servant the President by expecting less of him socially. They should not take so much of his time by their calls at the White House and by manoeuvring through their Congressmen to get personal interviews with him. They should not expect him to turn his "vacations" into tiresome railway trips, punctuated by exhausting receptions and public addresses. The President needs more real rest and gets less of it than any other citizen in the United States.

So long as the President is head of a party as well as chief executive he probably cannot escape entirely the constant stream of politicians, who consume his time and his nervous strength with their appeals, their demands and their complaints. But nothing does more to depress a President's vitality than the dreary duty of dispensing patronage. It is probably too much to expect the politicians, intent on personal or party advantage, to be considerate of their unfortunate chief, but what a happy surprise it would be if they were to become so.

As long as our Presidents are eligible to more than one term it is only natural that a first term President may wish to have a second term. This leads to much personal work or at least thought to accomplish this object during the last half of his first term. And this may be as physically wearying as the regular duties of the office. We have seen that Senator Fess proposes that our Presidents should have a six years single term of office. This would cut out the log-rolling for a second term, and looks to us as if it would be a good arrangement.

Health Hints by the Father of Physical Culture

BERNARR MACFADDEN

Vitality may be dissipated in a number of different ways—by overeating, alcohol drinking, too little sleep, late hours, exciting pleasures, strenuous emotions, etc. In fine "the game is not worth the candle," and many years of a "life abounding" with love and health are certainly worth more than a few hours of riotous, sensual enjoyment, every now and then—followed by depressing and debasing after-effects.

Any discussion of the requirements of health would be incomplete without some reference to various forms of dissipation which are not commonly regarded as such. The term has come to have a rather narrow meaning, for at its mention one is most likely to think of drunkenness and all-night orgies in public places. Literally, however, the word has reference to all means of dissipating or wasting human energy, and in this sense it should be considered here. For instance, a man who thinks himself a model of righteousness and good conduct because he frowns upon alcoholic indulgence and the use of tobacco, may yet be guilty of even greater dissipation through the abuse of his stomach, in persistent overeating and in the use of unwholesome foods which consume or waste vitality.

Probably one of the most disastrous and at the same time one of the most common forms of dissipation is the American habit of late hours. In the cities there are only a few of the old-fashioned kind of people who get to bed before ten o'clock in the evening, whereas the more usual hour for retiring is somewhere between eleven and twelve. Indeed, there are probably more people who go to bed after midnight in the cities than who go to bed before ten. And in recent years the same tendencies are to be noted in the villages and small towns.

Vitality is impossible without sleep. Without this nightly opportunity of rebuilding the broken down cells, charging them with oxygen and storing up energy for the following day, one must inevitably deteriorate in vigor and strength. It seems hardly necessary to say that all else that one may attempt in the way of health culture and body-building will be of no avail whatever if day after day one sits up late in the evening, not only depriving one's body of the opportunity for recuperation, but still further wasting and destroying its tissues and powers. Truly, it is a policy of slow suicide, and one could scarcely conceive of a more certain method of bringing on complete physical and nervous collapse.

MONEY
Money buys motor cars,
Laces and things,
Diamonds and rubies
For princes and kings;
Money buys raiment
And foodstuffs and wine,
But money won't buy you
A character fine

Money can dress you
And feed you, and hire
Servants to bow to
Your slightest desire;
Flatterers and fawners
Will smile as you spend,
But money won't buy you
One genuine friend.

Money is nothing
But purchasing power;
It is good to possess

For the need of the hour,
But who would be welcomed
At every man's door,
Whatever his fortune,
Must have something more.

Money will take you
As far as it can,
But money has never
Yet fashioned a man;
Give all the world's money
To one who is base,
You will still see the leer
Of the brute on his face.

Toll for the money
And go for the goal,
But still keep a thought
For the good of your soul;
Be friendly, be kindly,
Be gentle, be true,
And make of yourself
What no money can do.

Why Every Citizen Should Buy in XENIA

The Dollar You Spend In Xenia Has A Chance To Come Back to You!

Have You Ever Thought of the Actual WORK a Dollar Does if Spent in our City?

Here's what a banker in a western city learned when he marked a single dollar bill with instructions that it be kept in that city, and each transaction in which this dollar bill was concerned to be reported to the bank. At the end of the week this dollar bill was to be returned to the bank.

The dollar bill was passed out to a customer on a Monday morning. By the end of the week it had been heard from exactly 138 times, each time figuring in a transaction among local people in their home town.

It had paid butchers, grocers, dry goods merchants, hardware merchants, the landlord, the iceman, the laundryman, the milkman, the washerwoman, and had served dozen of other useful purposes.

One resident reported that the dollar bill had passed through his hands on three different occasions during the week, each time to be passed on with its important mission of usefulness.

Doesn't this show in a conclusive manner what a single dollar can do WHEN KEPT AT HOME?

Doesn't it prove the utter folly of taking or sending your money out of town?

Think how much better it is for your own prosperity, and the prosperity of Xenia, to deal with your own merchants who give you equal or better values.

Stop and think. You'll be sure to always GIVE THE LOCAL STORES FIRST CHANCE!

FANNING, WHO COMES HERE OCTOBER 4, IS SPLENDID ARTIST

Cecil Fanning, distinguished American baritone, who will appear in concert at City Hall theater Thursday evening, October 4, at 8:15 o'clock is one of the few American singers who have won recognition in the musical centers of Europe as well as in their own land.

In England during the last summer, Mr. Fanning more than duplicated the success which he enjoyed there in pre-war days, and is just fresh from these successes. He is appearing at Memorial Hall, Dayton, October 2, and an open date resulted in Xenia's good fortune in securing him. Music lovers of the community are looking forward with much pleasure to this unusual treat.

In England last summer Mr. Fanning did the unprecedented thing of giving six recitals within the space of three weeks, repeating each program and winning such enthusiastic approval from both the press and the public after his second concert that he was engaged for a seventh appearance, this time with the London Symphony Orchestra, in a performance of the Ninth Symphony of Beethoven's, at Queen's Hall.

Mr. Fanning was born in Columbus, and first studied under Harry Brown Turpin, with whom he has ever since been associated, and who now assists him as accompanist. The understanding between Mr. Fanning and Mr. Turpin has become such a complete one that their appearances together have been styled joint recitals.

Those who have watched Mr. Fanning's steady progress and have heard his recent recitals in America have been in no way surprised at his European successes. Not only has his voice grown in beauty until it has been pronounced one of the finest of the day, but his interpretative art has developed enormously until there are few artists who give such complete satisfaction from every standpoint as he does.

Reserved seats for the concert can be obtained at Sayre and Hemphill's Monday.

FARM NEWS OF GREENE COUNTY

GREENE COUNTY FARMERS PICK SEED CORN FROM THE FIELD FARM BUREAU POINTS OUT

Early fall freezes that shriveled ripening corn over a wide strip of northern central Ohio and touched it else where here and there, carries threat of a seed corn situation that may bring on a repetition of the "seed corn famine" of 1917.

So farm crops men at the Ohio State University said today after having received reports from a number of county agricultural agents. C. J. Willard, professor of farm crops, issued a statement on steps that may be taken to avoid recurrence of the 1917 situation, when many Ohio farmers had to send outside of the state for their seed corn, and then to take about what they could get.

The crops man recommended immediate seed selection by farmers of the better-formed and more mature ears, this selection to be in the field from the standing stalk. "Maturity," he said, "is the first thing to be sought in seed corn any year, and this year mature ears are doubly worth looking for. They are the one which have most nearly escaped frost and freeze. By selection from the standing stalk, one can judge the worth of the whole plant and its performance under different conditions of competition as well as the form, size, freedom from disease and maturity of the ears.

The cold weather early this month, while it may have shriveled the growth of the grain, did not get at the germ of the seed and spoil it for seed, he adds. Careful selection, and extra careful storage at the time will assure good seed for next spring.

Observation so far this fall convinces the Greene County Farm Bureau, that more Greene County farmers

OLD AGE PENSION TIMELY SUBJECT FOR ADDRESS TO EAGLES

In the light of the present arguments for and against the proposed old age pension law, which will come before the voters of Ohio at the general election in November, the address to be given by Judge Thomas O'Donnell, of Kansas City, past national officer of the Fraternal Order of Eagles at the Xenia Aerie Sunday afternoon, is particularly timely.

The Eagles Lodge conceived the old age pension program, and has been the staunchest backer of the movement since its inception. The Lodge is carrying on the fight in an attempt to popularize the proposed law to receive a favorable vote at the coming balloting. Judge O'Donnell's speech at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, while explaining other activities and benefits of the organization, will explain its stand on the pension law.

The beneficial and recreation work of the order, its patriotic work during and after the war for the relief for families, insurance, social and charitable operations of Eagles, will be dealt with in full by the speaker. The Lodge, in a period of 25 years, has grown into an organization of 500,000 members and its activities strengthened and increases each year.

The address Sunday is one of a number the Kansas City jurist is making in this section of the country in the interests of the Lodge. It will open the membership campaign with which Xenia Aerie will precede its taking over of quarters in the W. C. Aerie recently purchased from W. C. Sutton at Main and Whiteman streets. Handsome lodge rooms will be furnished in the new property and the Xenia Aerie hopes to make an active bid for an increased membership.

A WIFE'S STORY

THE DANGERS THAT BESET YOUNG GIRLS

Chater XL.

Was there ever such a weakling as I? Often I asked myself this question, as I saw how little I, my influence, counted in my household. I had not the moral stamina to stand out against Paul in the slightest way. If he became annoyed or impatient I immediately dropped the subject, even when I knew it to be wrong.

Was I unconsciously afraid I might lose him? I don't know even now, but consciously no such thought entered my mind. "As long as ye both shall live," were no idle words to me they meant just that: As long as we lived.

Several times Evelyn Markham had told me I was too unselfish—that was the way she put it. But I knew it wasn't unselfishness, it was habit and the desire to keep Paul, my temperamental husband, good-natured.

While I was worrying over Joan, Evelyn made one of her now infrequent calls. She spoke of Joan, how lovely she had grown.

"She is almost grown up," she said. "You'll have to take good care of her, Ruby. The young people nowadays seem to have taken the bit in their teeth, determined to do as they like, no matter what the consequences." She then went on to tell me of a friend of hers, a woman I also knew slightly, whose young daughter about Joan's age had caused her much anxiety. Petting parties tea dances where girls went unchaperoned and danced with boys and young men of whom they knew nothing and general willfulness had made her friends almost ill.

"And Claire tells her mother that all the girls have these 'petting parties' that a girl is no longer popular in fact is not wanted unless she does as the rest do; and that many of the girls who indulge in this dangerous pastime are the daughters of women of society educated girls, who set the example to others," Evelyn went on.

"Of course there are many girls daughters of people in moderate circumstances, who take these girls as models, who shape their behavior by what they see them do. I have always regretted my babies died in infancy, it has saddened my whole life, but I'd rather they were where they are than exposed to the temptations of the young girl of today unless I was sure I could keep them clean and whole, some."

Evelyn had spoken with feeling. I wondered if she had heard anything concerning Joan, if she knew anything I said:

"I haven't heard anything of petting parties, Evelyn. I can't believe nice girls would go as far as that. Of course I have read some of the nonsense in the papers, humorous reference to such parties, but have not taken them seriously."

"Well, you should, Ruby. The young boys carry flasks in their pockets and urge the girls to drink with them. Claire told her mother it was done at the most exclusive places, that the boys laugh at prohibition and ape their elders in their efforts to break the law. The world does change! When we were young and that isn't so long ago a young fellow would never have asked.

I knew that at least a part of what she had spoken of so feelingly was true. Knew it to my sorrow. There flashed before me Joan's white face, her distressed eyes, and I felt a recurrence of the fear I had felt the day she came home intoxicated.

Impulsively I said: "I wish I could send Joan away for a time, not that she does the things we have been talking of, but she loves gayety, goes out a good deal, has friends I know nothing. I think they are all right; but—one never can be sure."

"Let her come to me for a week or two. I should love to have her." Just then Joan came in and Evelyn asked her to visit them in the country. Joan thanked her very prettily, but said:

"I can't come now. I'm dated up for the next two or three weeks. But I'll come later if I may."

Evelyn acquiesced but I had noticed a strange look on her face when Joan declared she was "all dated up" that made me flush with embarrassment, and—something more.

Lloyd George "In the Pink" as He Leaves London with Family for Visit in America

London, Sept. 29.—Former Premier David Lloyd George, accompanied by his wife and daughter, departed today for America amidst scenes of enthusiasm that recalled the days when he was in the heyday of his power.

"I appreciate your kindness in safely seeing me off the premises," shouted the former premier from the car window in answer to cheers of the crowd. "Take good care of the old country while I am gone."

The cheering gave way to laughter. The former premier received an unprecedented send off. The streets abutting the railway station were jammed. All the liberal members of the old Lloyd George government were on hand, including Winston Churchill, foreign Irish Secretary Hamar Greenwood and Thomas McNamara.

The platform of the train shed was packed with personal friends. Thousands of city workers delayed getting to their offices in hope of getting a glimpse of the Welsh statesman.

The salon of the railway car occupied by the Lloyd George family was piled high with fruit and flowers sent by friends and admirers from all parts of Great Britain.

Mrs. Lloyd George wore a blue

traveling costume and a brown hat. Miss Megan Lloyd George, the daughter, was dressed in navy blue.

The former premier sported a new traveling coat and looked to be in the pink of condition. He was in the best of spirits and joked merrily

WALTON POLICY BEFORE VOTERS NEXT TUESDAY

Military Rule Will Be Maintained Until After Court Action

ELECTION IS LEGAL

County Judges Testify Justice Hampered In Oil Region

Oklahoma City, Sept. 29.—Governor Walton intends to maintain the full force of the military and martial law in his state until after Tuesday, the day on which his career as chief executive will come before the tribunal of the people for approval or repudiation at the polls.

In an interview at the executive mansion, the governor tacitly acknowledged that he expects a statewide special election to be held or attempted Oct. 2, at which the foremost question will be impeachment or endorsement of his administration.

Coinciding with the state supreme court ruling assuring the legality of the special election call, the report spread that Governor Walton had withdrawn from his militant policy and would relax the pressure of military control. Asked pointedly if that were his intention he replied: "Not until after Tuesday, if then."

Pressed further to explain the significance of singling out Oct. 2 as the deadline for need of full martial law, he would not be drawn out and refused to answer other questions. However, he did announce that military occupation has been extended to the Cushing district of Payne county, "because justice could not be meted out there and prosecutions of criminal acts of the Ku Klux Klan could not be obtained." He said that Klan defiance had nearly resulted in a riot.

Troops were ordered dispatched to the Cushing district, an oil region, on the testimony of District Judge C. C. Smith of the Payne county judicial district and County Judge Brown Moore. They testified that justice was being hampered and prosecutions curtailed. A military court of inquiry will be set up at Cushing, the governor said.

Meanwhile, there has been a shake-up in the governor's military staff. Adjutant General Markham asked for a 10-day leave of absence because of ill health. Colonel Key, commander of the military zone of Oklahoma City, and Colonel Sledge, his aide, were relieved of duty and permitted to return to their homes. Governor Walton declined to comment on this procedure. Colonel Charles F. Barrett, formerly General Markham's aide, has been made temporary adjutant general. Brigadier General Charles E. McPherrin will have direct charge of military operations.

OVERCOME DISTRUST SAYS MANUFACTURER

Columbus, Sept. 29.—George M. Verity, Middletown president of the American Rolling Mills Company, addressing the Columbus Chamber of Commerce forum last night, stressed the responsibility of each community in solving its social and economic problems.

"Jealously and distrust between people in different walks of life must be overcome by bringing them together in a common interest," he said.

OFFICERS MEET

Columbus, Sept. 29.—Approximately 500 army reserve officers attending the convention of the Reserve Officers' Association here this afternoon participated in the ceremonies marking the presentation of divisional and organization flags of Ohio outfits to the state at the state house.

The reservists this morning were in business session and discussed army redistricting, army legislation, dual commissions and appropriations.

SUGAR MERCHANT DIES.

Cincinnati, Sept. 29.—Harry L. Laws, 71, head of the firm of James H. Laws and Company, commission merchants, and formerly one of the largest sugar factors in Louisiana, died from a fractured skull a few hours after being struck by an automobile last night.

with friends. He said he had a great stock of books with him and was anticipating the greatest experience of his life in seeing America.

As the train steamed out there was an extraordinary scene. Hundreds rushed down the platform straining their eyes for a final view of the ex-premier. There was a mighty shout of "good bye and God be with you."

Before the train departed Mr. Lloyd George skillfully sidestepped his first opportunity to get into an American controversy. Just as the locomotive was beginning to move one enthusiast rushed up shouting: "If Americans say they won the war you be sure to tell them you did it."

Mr. Lloyd George laughed but made no reply.

Mrs. Lloyd George intimated to friends that she is going to "boss" the American tour of her famous husband. She is not going to allow him to wear out his strength. She especially is putting on the breaks regarding speeches. She said she would do her utmost to prevent him from talking to small audiences but will not try to prevent him from addressing big gatherings.

PRESIDENT TO SEEK FURTHER ADVICE ON GUARANTY SECTION

Say Coolidge Is Only "Considering" Freight Rate Question

Washington, Sept. 29.—President Coolidge is considering the question of making recommendation to congress concerning section 15-a, the so-called guaranty section of the Esch-Cummings transportation act, but as yet has not come to any conclusion.

This was stated officially at the white house. It was said that the president conferred with the railroad executives and representatives of organized labor regarding the matter, and plans to seek other advice from similar sources and from members of congress before making a decision.

Section 15-a of the Esch-Cummings act has been the chief bone of contention throughout the agitation, chiefly in the agricultural states of the west, for repeal or at least drastic modification of the railroad law. The demand for repeal of the guaranty section has become widespread among the farmers and their representatives in congress. It also is one of the principal planks in the platform of the LaFollette "progressive" bloc. The Democrats, too, have demanded its removal.

Those joining in this demand take the position that while there is no means provided to insure the carrying out of the intent of that section, it nevertheless stands as an intended guarantee, and that it is responsible for the present high freight rates, to which the farmers attribute their major troubles.

Section 15-a is the rate making part of the railroad act. It directs the rates to be that which obtained prior to the date of the act, but which will insure the roads a return of 5 1/2 per cent on their valuation. It also gives the commission the right to add one-half of one per cent to the return, making the total a maximum of six per cent, in its discretion. The commission has fixed upon 5 1/2 per cent as the basis on which rate schedules are determined.

The view of those who insist upon repealing the section is that the fair and proper method of determining rates is that which obtained prior to the enactment of the Esch-Cummings act. Under that plan the commission's directions were to provide rate levels that would insure to the respective roads a reasonable return.

COHAN RETURNS TO THEATER MONDAY

Cincinnati, Sept. 29.—George M. Cohan, noted actor-author-producer, will appear on the stage for the first time in several years, at the opening performance of his latest play, "The Song and Dance Man," at a Cincinnati theater Monday night.

The play, which is straight comedy without music, opened in Detroit last week but Cohan is not to join the cast until its arrival here. The production is said to be built upon the author's own professional experience.

PROPOSE REVIVAL OF GRAIN CORPORATION TO AID FARMERS

If Legal Barriers Are Removed Government Would Purchase 200,000,000 Bushels at Rate of $1.50 a Bushel.

Washington, Sept. 29.—Revival of the United States grain corporation with authority to purchase 200,000,000 bushels of wheat in the open market is the plan most favored by the Coolidge administration for the relief of the agriculture industry, it was learned today.

The purchase price would be $1.50 a bushel if the plan is finally adopted. Its supporters contend it would bring immediate stabilization to the wheat market and prove immediate financial relief for poverty stricken agriculturists.

Legal barriers, however, may prevent revival of the corporation, as it existed during the war, in which case a semi-governmental agency would be created to purchase the wheat with federal funds. It is understood the department of justice now is studying the legal aspects of the plan with a view of adjusting President Coolidge whether he has sufficient emergency powers to meet the situation.

Legislators and spokesmen for farm organizations have favored revival of the grain corporation over all other relief plans in recent conferences with the president. Advocates of this plan urged it upon the president as the most available means of providing "immediate relief for stricken farmers. It would have to be followed by permanent relief legislation in the next congress. The president is expected to announce his decision early next month.

Various steps in this relief plan, as outlined to International News Service by government officials are as follows:

- 1 Revival of the United States Grain Corporation by Presidential proclamation to meet a "national emergency" among the farmers.
- 2 Authority conferred upon the corporation by the president to purchase 200,000,000 bushels of wheat

THIRTY PERSONS ARE RESCUED FROM BURNING BUILDING

Police and firemen joined in carrying the tenants off the building down ladders to safety below. One man was seriously burned about the face.

The fire was discovered by Mrs. Marion McCarrell, of Columbus, who was visiting her mother, Mrs. Francis Williams. The two women called the fire department and then went from apartment to apartment awakening other tenants.

James Dunn, 32, opening the door leading to the hall was met with a sheet of flames, and badly burned. However he climbed down a ladder placed by firemen to the street two stories below.

The damage was estimated at $6,000.

NUMBER OF DEAD IN RAIL DISASTER UNDETERMINED MAY REACH MORE THAN 50

Cessation of Rainfall Saturday Expected to Result In Successful Efforts To Raise Submerged Cars From Stream

Casper, Wyo., Sept. 29.—With the number of dead still undetermined in Wyoming's most appalling railroad disaster in years, dawn today brought hope that rescue workers would be able to reach the submerged cars of Chicago, Burlington and Quincy passenger train No. 30, which plunged into the raging torrent of Cole creek when a bridge across that stream near Lockett, 15 miles east of here, collapsed late Thursday night.

Railroad officials still clung to their belief that not more than 25 victims are in the watery grave of Cole creek, but statements of rescued passengers indicate that between 40 and 55 met their death when the flood waters of the surging stream sealed them in the toppled over passenger cars.

With rain still falling and the swift current lapping the portions of the cars still protruding from the water, all efforts at removing the bodies were abandoned late last night and because of the fear that the bodies float downstream if derricks and hoisting equipment were attached to them it was decided to wait until the waters in the normally dry creek had subsided before further attempts to take out the victims were made.

Rain ceased falling early this morning and at dawn indications were that flood waters during the day would subside to a point that would permit entrance to the submerged coaches of the ill fated train.

The locomotive and smoker lie completely submerged, and it is feared the later holds many dead.

The day coach, with but one end sticking out of the water is also believed to contain many bodies.

It is feared that all changes of identification will have passed unless the bodies are recovered today as they have now been in the water more than 30 hours.

Dr. J. F. O'Donnell, Burlington surgeon, said this morning the speed of the stream which has been like a veritable Niagara, will so mar the faces of those in the water and result in such decomposition that even embalming will be difficult.

Two bodies from the wreckage, express messenger D. E. Schultz, of Denver and H. M. Schmidt, of Glen Rock, had been identified early today. Two bodies had been washed ashore at Glen Rocks, and reports, unconfirmed, were received from the vicinity of the wreck that several bodies had been seen floating down the Platte river, of which Cole creek is a tributary, at daybreak today.

According to Burlington officials a check up of their records showed that there were approximately 76 persons on the train when it left Casper. Thirty-four have been accounted for, leaving 42 believed dead. This report was confirmed by some of the surviving passengers who declared that the train carried its lightest load in months when it started on its fatal journey.

It was said however that several passengers were on the train who had not purchased tickets at Casper and it is feared that the final list of dead may go over the fifty mark.

A list of those missing and believed dead follows:

R. L. Gierhart, Denver.
O. H. Gans, Denver.
M. D. Montgomery, Denver.
Train Conductor, G. W. Goff.
Engineer Ed Spangler.
Fireman Orrie Mallon.

DEATH AND DAMAGE FOLLOW STORMS IN 3 WESTERN STATES

Omaha, Neb. Sept. 29.—Seventeen known dead and property damage running into thousands of dollars are the toll of violent storms accompanied by cloudbursts and floods in three middle western states. In several localities the storms still were raging early today.

Mill creek, near Louisville, Neb., claimed 12 lives when it swept away a house and drowned all of its occupants. The creek, a tributary of the Platte river, was swollen to flood proportions by a cloudburst and swept out of its banks, covering a large part of the village of Louisville.

Five persons were killed and a number of others reported injured when a tornado descended on Council Bluffs, Ia., and leveled many buildings within an area of two blocks.

Another severe storm was reported to have struck Oshkosh, a small Nebraska community.

Wyoming and sections of Iowa and Kansas are heaviest sufferers in the storms. Scores of bridges were swept away in Wyoming and long stretches of railroad track washed out.

At Council Bluffs 35 houses were reported wrecked. Firemen were called out to rescue occupants. The full force of the storm descended on Tostein street, wreaking havoc between Graham and South Avenues. The city gas plant was in the path of the storm and was partially destroyed, crippling service.

Railway schedules are seriously impaired, crippling service. In some sections of Nebraska water is six inches deep on the tracks. Hail is also adding to the damage. Crop losses will not be great, as most of the grain has been harvested.

FUR STORE LOOTED

Canton, O., Sept. 29.—Held up at the point of a revolver by three supposed customers here, Mrs. Annie Gerstenfeld, wife of the proprietor of a fur company, was chloroformed and the store looted. More than 150 furs, coats, with an estimated value of $75,000, were carried away in an automobile. In addition to selecting the best furs in the store, the thieves ransacked the safe and secured $275.

WALTON ISSUES PAPER

Oklahoma City, Sept. 29.—Governor Walton issued the second number of his own paper, the Record, in which he specifically charges the Ku Klux Klan with atrocious outrages. To stop these he declared the state under martial law. The cases cited, the governor explained, are supported by evidence already adduced by the military investigation.

COOLIDGE HOPEFUL EUROPE WILL WORK OUT OWN SALVATION

Washington, Sept. 29.—Officials and diplomats, from President Coolidge down, are more hopeful that Europe will work out a solution of her politico-economic problem. As each passing day brings no news of any uprising against the central government in Berlin, the belief gains strength that Chancellor Stresemann and his ministry will be able to put into operation some plan for the economic rehabilitation of Germany. No matter what may be the view held in Paris, the practically unanimous opinion here is that, unless Germany is restored as an economic nation, Europe can not recover.

The proclamation putting an official end to passive resistance, it is pointed out, relieves the Berlin government of a great financial load that was aggravating an already embarrassing situation. Relieved of this burden, it is pointed out, Chancellor Stresemann may proceed with some plan for stabilizing the mark.

ISSUES DENIAL

Columbus, Sept. 29.—Denial that the state highway department intends to construct a gravel road "as a permanent proposition" on the main market highway from Columbus to Logan, via Lancaster, was contained in a statement from State Highway Director Boulay today.

Until funds are available to construct a more permanent type of road, "the department proposes to provide a serviceable all year road of gravel construction," Boulay said.

Lisbon, O., Sept. 29.—An indictment was returned by the Columbiana county grand jury against Dr. S. E. Conrad, prohibition enforcement officer of East Palestine, on a charge of shooting with intent to wound. Conrad is alleged to have shot a man named McCauley when the latter attempted to flee as dry agents were making a raid. McCauley was not seriously wounded.

All teachers entering the profession this year and all who have not already enrolled in the teachers' retirement system, must do so within a few days, according to County Superintendent of School, H. C. Aultman.

The law requires that all teachers must be members of the system during their time of service, it is pointed out. This system is on an actuarial basis, and will eventually be largely supported by the teachers themselves, from the four per cent contributions from their salaries, which all must make, according to Mr. Aultman.

RIGHT AND WRONG COLORS DESCRIBED BY ART LECTURER

Yellow Springs, Sept. 29.—Theodore H. Pond, of the Dayton Institute of Art, delivered his fourth public lecture in aesthetics at Antioch College, Thursday night, before a class of sixty students and residents of Yellow Springs.

Mr. Pond described the right and wrong colors in costume, interior decoration, and architecture. He pointed out that color has been used since the earliest ages, although modern costumes are not so lavish in its use. They go to old paintings for color combinations but they could get better effects from nature. He illustrated with slides the return to color in modern architecture. The lecture was concluded with pictures of Indian pottery and Oriental rugs.

AGENTS PRESENTED

THANK OFFERING MEETING.

A splendid pagant, in connection with the annual Thankoffering service of the Woman's Missionary Society of the First United Presbyterian Church was presented before a good-sized audience, in the church parlors, Friday evening.

Mrs. A. M. Patterson, president of the Society, presided and made announcements, followed by deacons. Three little girls, Frances Marshall, Sarah Davidson, and Isabel Wheeler, sang a psalm of thanksgiving, followed by prayer.

"Miss Thankless Becomes Miss Thankful" was the title of the thankoffering pagant, with Mrs. S. S. Frazier taking the part of Miss Thankful, representing the Spirit of Thankoffering. She was seated on a dais, dressed in flowing white robes and a golden crown on her head. At her feet were the Blessings she brings—Parents, Doctor, Nurse, Country, Church, School, College and above all, the gifts of Jesus Christ. The various Blessings were represented by little boys and girls, each holding an illuminated placard.

Mrs. William Nash, as Miss Thankless, presented herself, to the Spirit of Thankoffering, asking, "Why should I give a Thankoffering to help others, when I need all my money for myself?" The Spirit of Thankoffering answered her question by presenting through the pages, Emily Dean and Marjorie Chandler, the various needs of the world, Indian, Freedmen, Mountain Whites, Italian, Hindu, Sudanese, Abyssinian, Egyptian and East Indian, who were represented by the young people of the congregation, and who rehearsed their privations to Miss Thankless.

She is thoroughly convinced that she has been wrong, and enthusiastically acknowledges her selfishness, and all join in a prayer of Thanksgiving.

Twenty-nine took part in the pagant. After the pagant, Mrs. Carl Smith sang, "The Earth is the Lord's," the 24th psalm. The Rev. Mr. Lytle, made a short talk, and closed the program with prayer and benediction.

ROBBERS OF DELCO PLANT CAUGHT BY POLICE WITH LOOT

Dayton, Sept. 29.—Three men who held up and robbed the paymaster's office at the Delco-Light plant, Amelia and Taylor streets, of $5400 about 5 o'clock Friday afternoon, were arrested an hour and a half later by police in a house at 110 Wortman avenue, and confessed to the robbery.

A travelling bag containing their spoils, $5400 in 162 pay envelopes was seized.

The men under arrest are Steve Varso, 35, of 221 Troy street, Dayton; George Miller, 23, of 2723 Park avenue, Detroit and George Smith, alias Thornton, giving Toledo as his home.

All available city and county police were watching streets and roads in Dayton and Montgomery county within a few minutes after the robbery. A squad of detectives and plain clothes men was held in readiness at police headquarters to answer any report that the robbers had been sighted, and descriptions of the robbers, and their car had been telephoned to police in all neighboring cities.

About 5:30 o'clock police received a tip that three men, one carrying a travelling bag were seen entering the house at 110 Wortman street. A squad of police and detectives surprised the men in the house.

The bag containing the money was found behind a table. Only three pay envelopes were missing.

According to the bandits' story Varso who had worked at the Delco for a year as a screw machine operator, was the inside man on the robbery. He planned it with Smith, a former friend in Toledo, to whom he communicated the pay system at the Delco. Miller and Smith said they came to Dayton in a Cadillac which they stole in Toledo. They reached Dayton at noon Friday. Varso drew his week's pay at noon and did not work in the afternoon, getting in touch with his companions.

They arranged the robbery to take place after the girls' employees had drawn their pay and before the men were released from work. E. H. Pfeiffer of Miamisburg, the paymaster and D. H. Sikorski the assistant were alone in the paymaster's booth. Miller and Smith drove to the Taylor street entrance to the factory and parked in front of the main gates. After the girls had passed through they jumped from their car and with drawn revolvers ran through the factory grounds to the building where Pay Station No. 4 is located, and passed down a corridor to the paymaster's window. Forcing the paymaster and his assistant to put up their hands they raked the envelopes into a travelling bag and ran back to their car.

After the robbery Miller and Smith drove to 221 Troy street where Varso roomed, and changed their clothes. Varso took them to 110 Wortman street where they were refused rooms by the landlady. They were sitting on a couch discussing plans when arrested.

STIMULATION OF CHURCH SHOULD BE YEAR AROUND WORK

Dr. C. H. Stull, secretary of evangelism for the Ohio Baptist Convention, was the principal speaker at the evangelistic services at the First Baptist Church, Friday night.

His subject was "Developing an Evangelistic Church" bringing out the idea that a church stimulation must be carried on throughout the entire year instead of allowing the church to sleep the latter part of the year, and then crowding the work into an evangelistic period.

The Rev. W. J. Staley of Dayton, also addressed the Friday night audience. Dr. Stull will give another sermon Saturday night and will hold a conference of all officers of the church and Sunday school after the meeting.

Dr. Stull will preach at the morning and evening services Sunday. He has been successful in every church community he has visited and the local church is expecting great benefit from his visit according to the Rev. E. R. Brown, pastor.

BURGULARS GET $18 FROM REGISTER AT CRITERION FRIDAY

Burglars who entered The Criterion clothing store, South Detroit Street, early Friday night, after removing the iron grating covering a basement window in the rear and prying open the window, took $18 from the cash register. Nothing else was disturbed.

A large box containing a shipment of hose was found pulled against the window, but its not known whether the thieves attempted to pull the box through the window or used it to stand on. The iron grating after being removed from its position, was placed in the enclosure about the window which is eight feet deep, and was evidently used as a ladder.

Frank Hustmyer, proprietor of the Smoke House adjoining the Criterion, noticed the grating had been removed from the window which is directly behind his place of business, after he returned from supper, about seven o'clock, and notified Harold M. Owens, manager of The Criterion.

The store was closed for the day at six o'clock and Mr. Owens was in the store again at 6:50. The robbery had evidently taken place between six and 6:50 and it is believed that Mr. Owens entering the store may have frightened the intruder away.

Patrolman Simms investigated but found no clue to the burglar. The store has been robbed twice before.

HEAVY FINES GIVEN AND DRY OFFICERS SCORED BY JUDGE

Cincinnati, Sept. 29.—Scenes virtually without parallel in the history of Cincinnati courts took place when Municipal Judge Woeste fined dry agents of the Loveland, Ohio, court and others on various charges. A severe denunciation of the practices of village dry agents preceded the announcement of sentences and was greeted by cheers from spectators.

Harry G. Miller, chief dry agent of the Loveland Court and former police judge of that village, was fined $500 and sentenced to 30 days in jail on two of the three charges against him. These two charges were possession of liquor and intoxication. A charge of carrying concealed weapons, coupled with disorderly conduct, was dismissed. Joseph Yaffee, Miller's assistant was fined $500 and costs on charges of possessing liquor. Edwin Kibby, former police telephone operator and a former Loveland dry agent, also was fined $500 on a charge of possessing liquor.

The trials and sentences grew out of a raid on an apartment which, Kibby admitted, he occupied.

Other persons arrested during the raid, which was made as the result of what was described as "riotous revelry" taking place in the apartment, drew "costs suspended."

LET US BE FAIR WITH RELIGION.

Occasionally a person who has been a church member is taken in crime and there are always many to cry: "Religion is a failure." No so. This person has simply been acting the hypocrite. In his or her case, as we often say about vaccination, "Religion didn't take."

The charge that a so-called christian had fallen from grace is often a great source of grief to relatives, and of much regret to fellow church members, but Religion itself should not be held up in decision. It only proves that the person was a "black sheep" when he or she should have been a white one.

Coleridge, one of the wisest men who ever lived, at the end of his life summed up his conclusions as follows:

"I have known what the enjoyments and advantages of this life are, and what the more refined pleasures which learning and intellectual powers can bestow, and with all the experience which more than three score years can give, I now, on the eve of my departure, declare to you that health is a great blessing—competence, obtained by honorable industry, a great blessing—and a great blessing it is to have kind, faithful and loving friends and relatives—but the greatest of all blessings, as it is the most ennobling of all privileges, is indeed to be a christian."

Re-read that. It certainly could scarcely be more fully expressive of all that is desirable at the end of a long life.

If we want to be honest with Religion, let us not charge it with the downfall of every professed christian, but let us see what proportion of christians go wrong—that is the per cent, as compared with those who have not classed themselves as such. We are sure that nobody will claim that more than one tenth of registered church members are found in the lists of law breakers. If this be so then, we are to conclude that ninety are faithful to their vows—ninety per cent. Surely this large per cent must be conjured with, and christianity be not charged as a failure every time a "black sheep" of the fold plays false to his vows.

THE PRESIDENT'S BURDEN.

The physical breakdown of President Wilson and the lamented death of President Harding during their respective terms of office have awakened us all to a realization of the burden of responsibility and labor that our chief magistrates are called upon to bear. It has been said by those who are familiar with the facts that that burden is twice as great today as it was when McKinley was President and probably four times as heavy as it was in the leisurely days before the Civil War. Only a man who is comparatively young, physically in perfect condition and temperamentally placid can be expected to take the strain without unfortunate results.

It is generally admitted, therefore, that we must find some way to lighten the tasks of the President. He must be relieved from the load of routine and detail that now occupies so much of his time and demands so much of his nervous energy. Senator Edge of New Jersey wants the duty of administering the budget, which was recently added to the President's responsibilities, transferred to the Vice President. Mr. John Brooks Leavitt, an eminent lawyer of New York, believes that the second article of the Constitution, properly construed, would now permit the President to delegate to the Vice President any duties that he found himself unable to perform for any reason—provided of course that Congress first passed a statute authorizing him to do so. Other men say that a law limiting a President to a single term would help. Mr. Walter F. Brown, who at President Harding's request, framed a plan for the reorganization of the executive departments that was laid before Congress last year, advises the creation of a new office—that of assistant to the President, who should be authorized, under the President's direction, to sign papers, reply to letters and attend to the tedious and exhausting interviews with Congressmen on the eternal subject of appointments to office. It is Mr. Brown's opinion that a President cannot now give more than two hours a day to the really important business of his office, so overburdened is he with the mass of social and administrative detail that has accumulated upon his shoulders.

Something must be done, and quickly, to reorganize the present executive system. In the meantime the people themselves should help their servant the President by expecting less of him socially. They should not take so much of his time by their calls at the White House and by manoeuvring through their Congressmen to get personal interviews with him. They should not expect him to turn his "vacations" into tiresome railway trips, punctuated by exhausting receptions and public addresses. The President needs more real rest and gets less of it than any other citizen in the United States.

So long as the President is head of a party as well as chief executive he probably cannot escape entirely the constant stream of politicians, who consume his time and his nervous strength with their appeals, their demands and their complaints. But nothing does more to depress a President's vitality than the dreary duty of dispensing patronage. It is probably too much to expect the politicians, intent on personal or party advantage, to be considerate of their unfortunate chief, but what a happy surprise it would be if they were to become so!

As long as our Presidents are eligible to more than one term it is only natural that a first term President may wish to have a second term. This leads to much personal work or at least thought to accomplish this object during the last half of his first term. And this may be as physically wearying as the regular duties of the office. We have seen that Senator Fess proposes that our Presidents should have a six years single term of office. This would cut out the log-rolling for a second term, and looks to us as if it would be a good arrangement.

Health Hints by the Father of Physical Culture

Vitality may be dissipated in a number of different ways—by overeating, alcohol drinking, too little sleep, late hours, exciting pleasures, strenuous emotions, etc. In fine "the game is not worth the candle," and many years of a "life bounding" with love and health are certainly worth more than a few hours of riotous, sensual enjoyment, every now and then—followed by depressing and debasing after-effects.

Any discussion of the requirements of health would be incomplete without some reference to various forms of dissipation which are not commonly regarded as such. The term has come to have a rather narrow meaning, for at its mention one is most likely to think of drunkenness and all-night orgies in public places. Literally, however, the word has reference to all means of dissipating or wasting human energy, and in this sense it should be considered here. For instance, a man who thinks himself a model of righteousness and good conduct because he frowns upon alcoholic indulgence and the use of tobacco, may yet be guilty of even greater dissipation through the abuse of his stomach, in persistent overeating and in the use of unwholesome foods which consume or waste vitality.

Probably one of the most disastrous and at the same time one of the most common forms of dissipation is the American habit of late hours. In the cities there are only a few of the old-fashioned kind of people who get to bed before ten o'clock in the evening, whereas the more usual hour for retiring is somewhere between eleven and twelve. Indeed, there are probably more people who go to bed after midnight in the cities than who go to bed before ten. And in recent years the same tendencies are to be noted in the villages and small towns.

Vitality is impossible without sleep. Without this nightly opportunity of rebuilding the broken down cells, charging them with oxygen and storing up energy for the following day, one must inevitably deteriorate in vigor and strength. It seems hardly necessary to say that all else that one may attempt in the way of health culture and body-building will be of no avail whatever if day after day one sits up late in the evening, not only depriving one's body of the opportunity for recuperation, but still further wasting and destroying its tissues and powers. Truly, it is a policy of slow suicide, and one could scarcely conceive of a more certain method of bringing on complete physical and nervous collapse.

MONEY
Money buys motor cars,
Laces and things,
Diamonds and rubies;
For princes and kings;
Money buys raiment
And foodstuffs and wine,
But money won't buy you
A character fine

Money can dress you
And feed you, and hire
Servants to bow to
Your slightest desire;
Flatterers and fawners
Will smile as you spend,
But money won't buy you
One genuine friend.

Money is nothing
But purchasing power;
It is good to possess

For the need of the hour,
But who would be welcomed
At every man's door,
Whatever his fortune,
Must have something more.

Money will take you
As far as it can,
But money has never
Yet fashioned a man;
Give all the world's money
To one who is base,
You will still see the leer
Of the brute on his face.

Toll for the money
And go for the goal,
But still keep a thought
For the good of your soul;
Be friendly, be kindly,
Be gentle, be true,
And make of yourself
What no money can do.

Why Every Citizen Should Buy in XENIA

The Dollar You Spend In Xenia Has A Chance To Come Back to You!

Have You Ever Thought of the Actual WORK a Dollar Does if Spent in our City?

Here's what a banker in a western city learned when he marked a single dollar bill with instructions that it be kept in that city, and each transaction in which this dollar bill was concerned to be reported to the bank. At the end of the week this dollar bill was to be returned to the bank.

The dollar bill was passed out to a customer on a Monday morning. By the end of the week it had been heard from exactly 138 times, each time figuring in a transaction among local people in their home town.

It had paid butchers, grocers, dry goods merchants, hardware merchants, the landlord, the iceman, the laundryman, the milkman, the washerwoman, and had served dozen of other useful purposes.

One resident reported that the dollar bill had passed through his hands on three different occasions during the week, each time to be passed on with its important mission of usefulness.

Doesn't this show in a conclusive manner what a single dollar can do WHEN KEPT AT HOME?

Doesn't it prove the utter folly of taking or sending your money out of town?

Think how much better it is for your own prosperity, and the prosperity of Xenia, to deal with your own merchants who give you equal or better values.

Stop and think. You'll be sure to always GIVE THE LOCAL STORES FIRST CHANCE!

Styles BY LENORE

Ruffled daintiness is the keynote of this winsome frock of cymamen pink taffeta which takes its motif from a fashion of long ago, but expresses the charm of perennial youth. The sleeve caps and front hem border are of delicate silver lace, the slippers of silver metal brocade.

PARIS NOTES

Tailored suit skirts suppress fullness over hips by means of pressed darts, instead of shirring.

Velvets are almost exclusively chosen for elaborate evening wraps. Jeweled and metal embroideries frequently employed.

Foulard dresses lined with duvetyl. New idea for travel wear.

Subdued embroideries are employed to give character to coats designed for formal wear.

Some long coats have been introduced which are developed on the molded lines of the princess effect.

Velveteens are being used for three-piece suits.

TEACHERS SHOULD ENROLL AT ONCE IN RETIREMENT PLAN

All teachers entering the profession this year and all who have not already enrolled in the teachers' retirement system, must do so within a few days, according to County Superintendent of School, H. C. Aultman.

The law requires that all teachers must be members of the system during their time of service, it is pointed out. This system is on an actuarial basis, and will eventually be largely supported by the teachers themselves, from the four per cent contributions from their salaries, which all must make, according to Mr. Aultman.

Any or all who wish to withdraw from the system, may do so at the time of their withdrawal from the profession and receive all they have paid in, with four per cent interest.

RIGHT AND WRONG COLORS DESCRIBED BY ART LECTURER

Yellow Springs, Sept. 29.—Theodore H. Pond, of the Dayton Institute of Art, delivered his fourth public lecture in aesthetics at Antioch College, Thursday night, before a class of sixty students and residents of Yellow Springs.

Mr. Pond described the right and wrong colors in costuming, interior decoration, and architecture. He pointed out that color has been used since the earliest ages, although modern costumers are not so lavish in its use. They go to old paintings for color combinations but they could get better effects from nature. He illustrated with slides the return to color in modern architecture. The lecture was concluded with pictures of Indian pottery and Oriental rugs.

AGENTS PRESENTED IT THANK OFFERING MEETING.

A splendid agent, in connection with the annual Thankoffering service of the Woman's Missionary Society of the First United Presbyterian church was presented before a good-sized audience, in the church parlors, Friday evening.

Mrs. A. M. Patterson, president of the Society, presided and made the announcements, followed by devotional. Three little girls, Frances Marshall, Sarah Davidson, and Mabel Wheeler, sang a psalm of thanksgiving, followed by prayer.

"Miss Thankless Becomes Miss Thankful" was the title of the Thankoffering pageant, with Mrs. J. S. Frazier taking the part of Miss Thankful, representing the Spirit of Thankoffering. She was seated on a dais, dressed in flowing white robes and a golden crown on her head. At her feet were the Blessings she brings—Parents, Doctor, Nurse, Country, Church, School, College and above all, the gifts of Jesus Christ. The various Blessings were represented by little boys and girls, each holding an illuminated placard.

Mrs. William Nash, as Miss Thankless, presented herself to the Spirit of Thankoffering, asking, "Why should I give a Thankoffering to help others, when I need all my money for myself?" The Spirit of Thankoffering answered her question by presenting through the pages, Emily Dean and Marjorie Chandler, the various needs of the world, Indian, Freedmen, Mountain Whites, Italian, Hindu, Sudanese, Abyssinian, Egyptian and East Indian, who were represented by the young people of the congregation, and who rehearsed their privations to Miss Thankless. She is thoroughly convinced that she has been wrong, and enthusiastically acknowledges her selfishness, and all join in a prayer of thanksgiving.

Twenty-nine took part in the pageant. After the pageant, Mrs. Carl Smith sang, "The Earth is the Lord's," the 24th psalm. The Rev. Mr. Lytle, made a short talk, and closed the program with prayer and benediction.

K. OF C. OFFER CASH REWARD TO REFUTE ALLEGED FALSE OATH

It is understood the announcement of the reward, which is offered in an effort to stop what members of the organization say is a false and baseless statement, is being made all over the country. ROBBERS OF DELCO PLANT CAUGHT BY POLICE WITH LOOT

Dayton, Sept. 29.—Three men who held up and robbed the paymaster's office at the Delco-Light plant, Amelia and Taylor streets, of $5400 about 5 o'clock Friday afternoon, were arrested an hour and a half later by police in a house at 110 Wortman avenue, and confessed to the robbery.

A travelling bag containing their spoils, $5400 in 162 pay envelopes was seized.

Tae men under arrest are Steve Vargo, 35, of 221 Troy street, Dayton; George Miller, 23, of 2723 Park avenue, Detroit and George Smith, alias Thornton, giving Toledo as his home.

All available city and county police were watching streets and roads in Dayton and Montgomery county within a few minutes after the robbery. A squad of detectives and plain clothes men were held in readiness at police headquarters to answer any report that the robbers had been sighted, and descriptions of the robbers, and their car had been telephoned to police in all neighboring cities.

About 6:30 o'clock police received a tip that three men, one carrying a travelling bag were seen entering the house at 110 Wortman street. A squad of police and detectives surprised the men in the house. The bag containing the money was found behind a table. Only three pay envelopes were missing.

According to the bandits' story Vargo who had worked at the Delco for a year as a screw machine operator, was the inside man on the robbery. He planned it with Smith, a former friend in Toledo, to whom he communicated the pay system at the Delco. Miller and Smith said they came to Dayton in a Cadillac which they stole in Toledo. They reached Dayton at noon Friday. Vargo drew his week's pay at noon and did not work in the afternoon, getting in touch with his companions.

They arranged the robbery to take place after the girl employees had drawn their pay and before the men were released from work. E. H. Pfeiffer of Miami, the paymaster and P. H. Sikorski the assistant were alone in the paymaster's booth. Miller and Smith drove to the Taylor street entrance to the factory and parked in front of the main gates. After the girls had passed and with drawn revolvers ran through the factory grounds to the building where Pay Station No. 4 is located, and passed down a corridor to the paymaster's window. Forcing the paymaster and his assistant to put up their hands they raked the envelopes into a travelling bag and ran back to their car.

After the robbery Miller and Smith drove to 221 Troy street where Vargo roomed, and changed their clothes. Vargo took them to 110 Wortman street where they were refused rooms by the landlady. They were sitting on a couch discussing plans when arrested.

BURGLARS GET $18 FROM REGISTER AT CRITERION FRIDAY

Burglars who entered The Criterion clothing store, South Detroit Street, early Friday night, after removing the iron grating covering a basement window in the rear and prying open the window, took $18 from the cash register. Nothing else was disturbed.

A large box containing a shipment of hose was found pulled against the window, but it was not known whether the thieves attempted to pull the box through the window or used it to stand on. The iron grating after being removed from its position was placed in the enclosure above the window which is eight feet deep, and was evidently used as a ladder.

Frank Hustmyer, proprietor of the Smoke House adjoining the Criterion, noticed the grating had been removed from the window which is directly behind his place of business, after he returned from supper, about seven o'clock, and notified Harold M. Owens, manager of The Criterion.

The store was closed for the day at six o'clock and Mr. Owens was in the store again at 6:50. The robbery had evidently taken place between six and 6:50 and it is believed that Mr. Owens entering the store may have frightened the intruder away.

Patrolman Simms investigated but found no clue to the burglar. The store has been robbed twice before.

HEAVY FINES GIVEN AND DRY OFFICERS SCORED BY JUDGE

Cincinnati, Sept. 29.—Scenes virtually without parallel in the history of Cincinnati courts took place when Municipal Judge Woeste fined dry agents of the Loveland, Ohio, court and others on various charges. A severe denunciation of the practices of village dry agents preceded the announcement of sentences and was greeted by cheers from spectators.

Harry G. Miller, chief dry agent of the Loveland Court and former police judge of that village, was fined $500 and sentenced to 30 days in jail on two of the three charges against him. These two charges were possession of liquor and intoxication. A charge of carrying concealed weapons, coupled with disorderly conduct, was dismissed. Joseph Yaffee, Miller's assistant was fined $500 and costs on charges of possessing liquor. Edwin Kibby, former police telephone operator and a former Loveland dry agent, also was fined $500 on a charge of possessing liquor.

The trials and sentences grew out of a raid on an apartment which, Kibby admitted, he occupied.

Other persons arrested during the raid, which was made as the result of what was described as "riotous revelry" taking place in the apartment, drew "costs suspended."

LET US BE FAIR WITH RELIGION.

Occasionally a person who has been a church member is taken in crime and there are always many to cry: "Religion is a failure." No so. This person has simply been acting the hypocrite. In his or her case, as we often say about vaccination, "Religion didn't take."

The charge that a so-called christian had fallen from grace is often a great source of grief to relatives, and of much regret to fellow church members, but Religion itself should not be held up in decision. It only proves that the person was a "black sheep" when he or she should have been a white one.

Coleridge, one of the wisest men who ever lived, at the end of his life summed up his conclusions as follows:

"I have known what the enjoyments and advantages of this life are, and what the more refined pleasures which learning and intellectual powers can bestow, and with all the experience which more than three score years can give, I now, on the eve of my departure, declare to you that health is a great blessing—competence, obtained by honorable industry, a great blessing—and a great blessing it is to have kind, faithful and loving friends and relatives—but the greatest of all blessings, as it is the most ennobling of all privileges, is indeed to be a christian."

Re-read that. It certainly could scarcely be more fully expressive of all that is desirable at the end of a long life.

If we want to be honest with Religion, let us not charge it with the downfall of every professed christian, but let us see what proportion of christians go wrong—that is the per cent, as compared with those who have not classed themselves as such. We are sure that nobody will claim that more than one tenth of registered church members are found in the lists of law breakers. If this be so then, we are to conclude that ninety are faithful to their vows—ninety per cent. Surely this large per cent must be conjured with, and christianity be not charged as a failure every time a "black sheep" of the fold plays false to his vows.

THE PRESIDENT'S BURDEN.

The physical breakdown of President Wilson and the lamented death of President Harding during their respective terms of office have awakened us all to a realization of the burden of responsibility and labor that our chief magistrates are called upon to bear. It has been said by those who are familiar with the facts that that burden is twice as great today as it was when McKinley was President and probably four times as heavy as it was in the leisurely days before the Civil War. Only a man who is comparatively young, physically in perfect condition and temperamentally placid can be expected to take the strain without unfortunate results.

It is generally admitted, therefore, that we must find some way to lighten the tasks of the President. He must be relieved from the load of routine and detail that now occupies so much of his time and demands so much of his nervous energy. Senator Edge of New Jersey wants the duty of administering the budget, which was recently added to the President's responsibilities, transferred to the Vice President. Mr. John Brooks Leavitt, an eminent lawyer of New York, believes that the second article of the Constitution, properly construed, would now permit the President to delegate to the Vice President any duties that he found himself unable to perform for any reason—provided of course that Congress first passed a statute authorizing him to do so. Other men say that a law limiting a President to a single term would help. Mr. Walter F. Brown, who at President Harding's request, framed a plan for the reorganization of the executive departments that was laid before Congress last year, advises the creation of a new office—that of assistant to the President, who should be authorized, under the President's direction, to sign papers, reply to letters and attend to the tedious and exhausting interviews with Congressmen on the eternal subject of appointments to office. It is Mr. Brown's opinion that a President cannot now give more than two hours a day to the really important business of his office, so overburdened is he with the mass of social and administrative detail that has accumulated upon his shoulders.

Something must be done, and quickly, to reorganize the present executive system. In the meantime the people themselves should help their servant the President by expecting less of him socially. They should not take so much of his time by their calls at the White House and by maneuvering through their Congressmen to get personal interviews with him. They should not expect him to turn his "vacations" into tiresome railway trips, punctuated by exhausting receptions and public addresses. The President needs more real rest and gets less of it than any other citizen in the United States.

So long as the President is head of a party as well as chief executive he probably cannot escape entirely the constant stream of politicians, who consume his time and his nervous strength with their appeals, their demands and their complaints. But nothing does more to depress a President's vitality than the dreary duty of dispensing patronage. It is probably too much to expect the politicians, intent on personal or party advantage, to be considerate of their unfortunate chief, but what a happy surprise it would be if they were to become so.

As long as our Presidents are eligible to more than one term it is only natural that a first term President may wish to have a second term. This leads to much personal work or at least thought to accomplish this object during the last half of his first term. And this may be as physically wearing as the regular duties of the office. We have seen that Senator Fess proposes that our Presidents should have a six years single term of office. This would cut out the log-rolling for a second term, and looks to us as if it would be a good arrangement.

IT MAKES THE WAR GOD LAUGH

Mr. O. P. Bell the new physical director of the Y. M. C. A., arrived in town last evening and is getting acquainted with his new field.

The Xenia High School football team is making splendid progress in its practice games and is rapidly developing into a hard and fast team. The management has procured the services of Attorney Harry Smith as coach, who during his attendance at Ann Arbor, was coached by the well known "Hurry Up"

Yost. Mr. Smith in his assistance to the High School team is trying to develop the style of play used by Yost at Michigan.

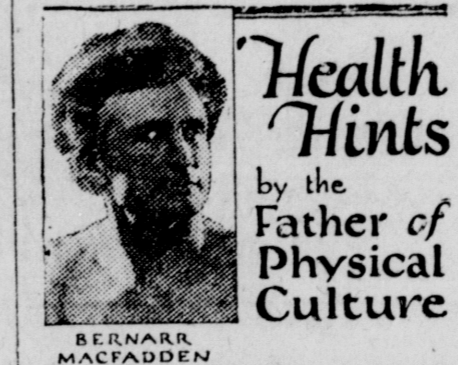

The recent action of the Xenia Shoe Company is increasing its capital stock from $50,000 to $100,000 has resulted in several of the employees becoming stockholders.

Traffic on the D. and X traction line was greatly delayed last night and travelers put to much inconvenience when a wheel and axle broke on one of the cars.

NEARLY HUNDRED KILLED BY AUTOS

Cincinnati, Sept. 29.—Cincinnati's list of auto fatalities for 1923 is nearing the 100 mark. The latest victim was James Thomas, eight, who was killed under the wheels of an automobile. The boy was the 95th victim so far this year.

Norman A. Hobbs, 30, this city, died yesterday of injuries received in an auto wreck at Dayton, O., six weeks ago.

Health Hints by the Father of Physical Culture

Vitality may be dissipated in a number of different ways by overeating, alcohol drinking, too little sleep, late hours, exciting pleasures, strenuous emotions, etc. In fine "the game is not worth the candle," and many years of a "life abounding" with love and health are certainly worth more than a few hours of riotous, sensual enjoyment, every now and then—followed by depressing and debasing after-effects.

Any discussion of the requirements of health would be incomplete without some reference to various forms of dissipation which are not commonly regarded as such. The term has come to have a rather narrow meaning, for at its mention one is most likely to think of drunkenness and all-night orgies in public places. Literally, however, the word has reference to all means of dissipating or wasting human energy, and in this sense it should be considered here. For instance, a man who thinks himself a model of righteousness and good conduct because he frowns upon alcoholic indulgence and the use of tobacco, may yet be guilty of even greater dissipation through the abuse of his stomach, in persistent overeating and in the use of unwholesome foods which consume or waste vitality.

Probably one of the most disastrous and at the same time one of the most common forms of dissipation is the American habit of late hours. In the cities there are only a few of the old-fashioned kind of people who get to bed before ten o'clock in the evening, whereas the more usual hour for retiring is somewhere between eleven and twelve. Indeed, there are probably more people who go to bed after midnight in the cities than who go to bed before ten. And in recent years the same tendencies are to be noted in the villages and small towns.

Vitality is impossible without sleep. Without this nightly opportunity of rebuilding the broken down cells, charging them with oxygen and storing up energy for the following day, one must inevitably deteriorate in vigor and strength. It seems hardly necessary to say that all else that one may attempt in the way of health culture and body-building will be of no avail whatever if day after day one sits up late in the evening, not only depriving one's body of the opportunity for recuperation, but still further wasting and destroying its tissues and powers. Truly, it is a policy of slow suicide, and one could scarcely conceive of a more certain method of bringing on complete physical and nervous collapse.

LUQUE SIGNS WITH RODS

MONEY

Money buys motor cars,
Laces and things,
Diamonds and rubies,
For princes and kings;
Money buys raiment
And foodstuffs and wine,
But money won't buy you
A character fine.

Money can dress you
And feed you, and hire
Servants to bow to
Your slightest desire;
Flatterers and fawners
Will smile as you spend,
But money won't buy you
One genuine friend.

Money is nothing
But purchasing power;
It is good to possess

For the need of the hour,
But who would be welcomed
At every man's door,
Whatever his fortune,
Must have something more.

Money will take you
As far as it can,
But money has never
Yet fashioned a man;
Give all the world's money
To one who is base,
You will still see the leer
Of the brute on his face.

Toll for the money
And go for the goal,
But still keep a thought
For the good of your soul;
Be friendly, be kindly,
Be gentle, be true,
And make of yourself
What no money can do.

Better do humble work and keep busy than be idle and dream of great tasks and never accomplish them.

Keep doing something. Take pride in doing the simple things well, and then you will be assured of the great things, and you will in addition have the confidence in yourself to handle the unworthy as efficiently.

Every hour that you waste takes that much lustre away from every hour that remains to you.

Strange as it may seem, you who inspire to proud heights must first throw pride away. You must accept the doing of little things and you must do them as though each in its turn was very important and great. That is how big things come about.

Fitness precedes greatness. Prepare. Keep getting ready for important tasks—and the tasks will come sooner or later.

Go to bed at night with at least one important thing learned or accomplished. The next day will dawn in finer garb.

Walk ahead. Don't bother about when or how you are to arrive. That will take care of itself.

"To Make Two Transparent Pies: Line two pie pans with pastry then fill them with the following: Beat the yolks of four eggs and the whites of two. Cream together one cup of butter and two cups of sugar, then add this mixture to the eggs. Also add four tablespoons of thick sweet cream and flavor with one teaspoon of vanilla. Bake for 40 minutes in medium-hot oven, then cover with the following meringue: Beat the remaining two egg-whites stiff and add to them two tablespoons of sugar. Brown for a few minutes in a moderate oven."

Why Every Citizen Should Buy in XENIA

The Dollar You Spend In Xenia Has A Chance To Come Back to You!

Have You Ever Thought of the Actual WORK a Dollar Does if Spent in our City?

Here's what a banker in a western city learned when he marked a single dollar bill with instructions that it be kept in that city, and each transaction in which this dollar bill was concerned to be reported to the bank. At the end of the week this dollar bill was to be returned to the bank.

The dollar bill was passed out to a customer on a Monday morning. By the end of the week it had been heard from exactly 138 times, each time figuring in a transaction among local people in their home town.

It had paid butchers, grocers, dry goods merchants, hardware merchants, the landlord, the iceman, the laundryman, the milkman, the washerwoman, and had served dozen of other useful purposes.

One resident reported that the dollar bill had passed through his hands on three different occasions during the week, each time to be passed on with its important mission of usefulness.

Doesn't this show in a conclusive manner what a single dollar can do WHEN KEPT AT HOME?

Doesn't it prove the utter folly of taking or sending your money out of town?

Think how much better it is for your own prosperity, and the prosperity of Xenia, to deal with your own merchants who give you equal or better values.

Stop and think. You'll be sure to always GIVE THE LOCAL STORES FIRST CHANCE!

GIANTS CLINCH THIRD PENNANT

New York, Sept. 28.—The Giants clinched the National league pennant by defeating the Brooklyn Robins here yesterday. Manager McGraw's men now can lose their remaining games and still end the season leading the league. It's their third straight league championship. The score was 3 to 0.

The Giants will meet the New York Americans in the world series games, which start Oct. 10. It will be the third successive time that the Giants and the Yanks have met to decide the championship of the two major leagues. In the two preceding series the Giants were winners.

CITY TO WELCOME OHIO STATE GRID FANS THIS SEASON

Columbus, O., Sept. 29.—Columbus is preparing to extend the city's glad hand to out-of-town patrons of Ohio State's at-home football games this fall.

Manufacturers and other business men of the city, acting through the Manufacturers' and Jobbers' Association of the Chamber of Commerce, are setting in touch with their customers and other business friends throughout the state, advising them of the attractions on Ohio State's schedule and offering their services in getting tickets for the games in the Stadium.

Some wholesalers and manufacturers are arranging to have their sales conference so as to coincide with important football dates when their salesmen will be their guests. Others are inviting customers to attend one of the big games as their guests.

Sponsors of the movement explain that it is not a matter of local but of state pride, that the Stadium is one of the architectural show places of the United States which many Ohioans never have seen, and that in the Western Conference, Ohio State represents not only Columbus and Central Ohio but the whole Buckeye State.

CENTRAL HIGH SUFFERS WORST DEFEAT IN THREE YEARS FROM WILMINGTON ELEVEN

Somewhere the sun may be doing its stuff in the well known way, but supporters of Xenia Central High are singing the blues to the tune of "Yes, We Have No Championship Cup," following the disastrous defeat suffered by the blue and white football players at the hands of the Wilmington High in the new Cox Memorial Athletic Field Friday afternoon.

Coming out of the fastnesses of Clinton County, the huge well balanced gridiron machine that Coach Roy Black is nourishing for a championship this year, knocked the green and inexperienced eleven flatter than a tin roof, by the score of 31 to 0. By virtue of the embargo, the Quakers now loom up as one of the strongest contenders for the Miami University cup, now gathering dust and tarnish in Xenia's new high school.

Just how much Xenia's football hopes were blasted by the latest lamented graduation exercises, was pictured before the eyes of a crowd estimated at more than 1,500. The game christened the new athletic field, donated by F. W. Dodds and fitted for use through a fund raised in memorial to the late Superintendent E. B. Cox. The victory was the first scored by a Wilmington team over Xenia for four years. While Xenia is experimenting with new candidates in an attempt to rebuild a depleted championship team the Quakers are at the crest of what should be the most successful season in their history. A more spirited and varied attack against Steele when those teams meet later, should open the eyes of the championship judges to the possibilities of lack's team.

Xenia is rebuilding a football team out of very little wreckage from last year's eleven and a world of green material. Out of the performance of the blue and white team Friday shone the individual work of Scurry, a colored lad, a tower of defense at left tackle, and an exceptional good ball totter. It is notable that Wilmington gains were made through he right side of Xenia's line while Scurry, Doggett and Washburn successfully halted operations on their side.

Xenia's defense was ragged, the line standing up too high against the heavy charging Wilmington backfield. Tackles were loose and too high. In the backfield, Currie and Fuller played well defensively but showed little of offensive power. Bortoff playing his first game at quarterback, had little opportunity to show his wares, as evidenced by the fact Xenia did not make one first down. Hot weather may have handicapped the team, as the extra weight of the Wilmington eleven undoubtedly did but it will be remembered both teams played under the same Weltz, Weltz for Bonecutter; Bobbett for Peele, Beckett for Bobbett, Bennett for Hill, Touchdowns—Bonecutter (2), Merker, Barnes, Weltz. Goals after touchdown—Merker 1 (drop kick). Referee—Reese, Denton; Headlinesman—Faires, Ohio State. Time—12 1/2 minute quarters.

ELECTRICIANS SET FOR GAME SUNDAY WITH MIAMISBURG

By Wones
The Bayliff Electricians will tackle a sturdy diamond foe at Washington Park Sunday afternoon when they engage the fast Miamisburg nine.

The Burgers have a classy outfit and have been showing the way to all the teams around Dayton and vicinity. They have been playing an excellent brand of ball and have taken the measure of such teams as the Dayton Racers whom they handily defeated by a 7 to 5 score. They also defeated the North Dayton Merchants by a 3 to 3 count, and have downed the Hamilton Movers, Coca Cola and other fast nines out of Cincinnati. The Burgers boast of a bunch of sluggers who are liable to break up a ball game at any stage of the game. Their fielding is also high class.

The calibre of the electricians is well established and the fans are satisfied that the team that downs them will have to step. The Bayliffs also possess some hitters in Longnecker, Shuey, Kavanaugh, Furnace and Catton. All these lads are battling around the 300 mark. The Bayliffs will present their regular lineup but will have a new outfielder in Mike Kerner, who plays with the N. C. R. team in the Saturday afternoon league. Kerner also played third base for the Dayton Gyms several years ago when the Gyms were in the K. O. League.

The rest of the lineup will remain unchanged which means Shuey will be on first, Longnecker at second, Early will take care of the short field while Furnace will hold down the hot corner. Leach, Kavanaugh and Kerner will make up the outfield. Just who will pitch will not be known until game time. Herman, who has worked in eight years for the locals, winning five and losing three, will be on hand. Curt Free has won four contests and dropped three. Free has sent some good nines to the rack such teams as Springfield Athletics, Yellow Springs and others having been turned back by the former Reserve star. Sunday's game will start at 2:30 o'clock with Norris in charge.

ANOTHER FIRM FAILS
New York, Sept. 29.—Failure of the Brokerage firm of Robert P. Marshall and company, was announced from the rostrum of the New York stock exchange. The firm was organized in 1919.

SAY HE SOLD DRUGS
Cincinnati, Sept. 29.—Dr. E. Silberstein of this city, was arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Gregory on a charge of selling narcotic drugs illegally. He entered a plea of not guilty and was held in $1,000 bond for preliminary hearing October 10th.

XENIA

FANNING, WHO COMES
HERE OCTOBER 4, IS SPLENDID ARTIST

Cecil Fanning, distinguished American baritone, who will appear in concert at City Hall theater Thursday evening, October 4, at 8:15 o'clock is one of the few American singers who have won recognition in the musical centers of Europe as well as in their own land.

In England during the last summer, Mr. Fanning more than duplicated the success which he enjoyed there in pre-war days, and is just fresh from these successes. He is appearing at Memorial Hall, Dayton, October 2, and an open date resulted in Xenia's good fortune in securing him. Music lovers of the community are looking forward with much pleasure to this unusual treat.

In England last summer Mr. Fanning did the unprecedented thing of giving six recitals within the space of three weeks, repeating each program and winning such enthusiastic approval from both the press and the public after his second concert that he was engaged for a seventh appearance, this time with the London Symphony Orchestra, in a performance of the Ninth Symphony of Beethoven's, at Queen's Hall.

Mr. Fanning was born in Columbus, and first studied under Harry Brown Turpin, with whom he has ever since been associated, and who now assists him as accompanist. The understanding between Mr. Fanning and Mr. Turpin has become such a complete one that their appearances together have been styled joint recitals.

Those who have watched Mr. Fanning's steady progress and have heard his recent recitals in America have been in no way surprised at his European successes. Not only has his voice grown in beauty until it has been pronounced one of the finest of the day, but his interpretative art has developed enormously until there are few artists who give such complete satisfaction from every standpoint as he does.

Reserved seats for the concert can be obtained at Sayre and Hemphill's Monday.

GREENE COUNTY FARMERS PICK SEED CORN
FROM THE FIELD FARM BUREAU POINTS OUT

Early fall freezes that shriveled ripening corn over a wide strip of northern central Ohio and touched it elsewhere here and there, carries threat of a seed corn situation that may bring on a repetition of the "seed corn famine" of 1917.

So farm crops men at the Ohio State University said today after having received reports from a number of county agricultural agents. C. J. Willard, professor of farm crops, issued a statement on steps that may be taken to avoid recurrence of the 1917 situation, when many Ohio farmers had to send outside of the state for their seed corn, and then to take about what they could get.

The crops man recommended immediate seed selection by farmers of the better-formed and more mature ears, this selection to be in the field from the standing stalk. "Maturity," he said, "is the first thing to be sought in seed corn any year, and this year mature ears are doubly worth looking for. They are the one which have most nearly escaped frost and freeze. By selection from the standing stalk, one can judge the worth of the whole plant and its performance under different conditions of competition as well as the form, size, freedom from disease and maturity of the ears.

The cold weather early this month, while it may have shriveled the growth of the grain, did not get at the germ of the seed and spoil it for seed, he adds. Careful selection and extra careful storage at the time will assure good seed for next spring.

Observation so far this fall convinces the Greene County Farm Bureau that more Greene County farmers

OLD AGE PENSION
TIMELY SUBJECT FOR
ADDRESS TO EAGLES

In the light of the present arguments for and against the proposed old age pension law, which will come before the voters of Ohio at the general election in November, the address to be given by Judge Thomas O'Donnell, of Kansas City, past national officer of the Fraternal Order of Eagles at the Xenia Aerie Sunday afternoon, is particularly timely.

The Eagles Lodge conceived the old age pension program, and has been the staunchest backer of the movement since its inception. The Lodge is carrying on the fight in an attempt to popularize the proposed law to receive a favorable vote at the coming balloting. Judge O'Donnell's speech at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, while explaining other activities and benefits of the organization, will explain its stand on the pension law.

The beneficial and recreation work of the order, its patriotic work during and after the war the relief for families, insurance, social and charitable operations of Eagles, will be dealt with in full by the speaker. The Lodge, in a period of 25 years, has grown into an organization of 500,000 members and its activities strengthened and increased each year.

The address Sunday is one of a number the Kansas City jurist is making in this section of the country in the interests of the Lodge. It will open the membership campaign with which Xenia Aerie will precede its taking over of quarters in the new Aerie recently purchased from W. C. Sutton at Main and Whitman streets. Handsome lodge rooms will be furnished in the new property and the Xenia Aerie hopes to make an active bid for an increased membership.

OSBORN HOTEL FIRE
RESULTS IN DAMAGE
ESTIMATED AT $8,000

Fire which started in an adjoining garage almost destroyed the Osborn Hotel, in Old Osborn early Friday, at a loss estimated between $6000 and $8000.

Volunteer fire departments of Osborn and Wilbur Wright field succeeded in extinguishing the flames before they spread to other buildings, although they were handicapped by low water pressure. Most of the furniture was removed from the burning hotel.

Members of the family of Sidney Cornelius and two guests were the only persons in the hotel when the fire broke out at 2 o'clock.

The garage was in flames when the fire was discovered and the blaze had spread to an adjoining chicken house by the time the volunteer fire departments arrived. A large Oldsmobile bus, a motorcycle, several barrels of oil and a large amount of furniture was burned with the garage.

The Osborn Hotel was owned by The Osborn Removal Company. The losses are partially covered by insurance.

A WIFE'S STORY

By Jane Phelps

THE DANGERS THAT BESET
YOUNG GIRLS

Chater XL.

Was there ever such a weakling as I? Often I asked myself this question, as I saw how little I, my influence, counted in my household. I had not the moral stamina to stand out against Paul in the slightest way. If he became annoyed or impatient I immediately dropped the subject, even when I knew I was to be wrong.

Was I unconsciously afraid I might lose him? I don't know even now, but consciously no such thought entered my mind. "As long as ye both shall live," were no idle words to me, they meant just that: As long as we lived.

Several times Evelyn Markham had told me I did not assert myself enough, that I was too unselfish—that was the way she put it. But I knew it wasn't unselfishness, it was habit and the desire to keep Paul, my temperamental husband, good-natured.

While I was worrying over Joan, Evelyn made one of her now infrequent calls. She spoke of Joan, how lovely she had grown.

"She is almost grown up," she said. "You'll have to take good care of her, Ruby. The young people nowadays seem to have taken the bit in their teeth, determined to do as they like, no matter what the consequences."

She then went on to tell me of a friend of hers, a woman I also knew slightly, whose young daughter about Joan's age had caused her much anxiety. Petting parties, tea dances where girls went unchaperoned and danced with boys and young men of whom they knew nothing and general wilfulness had made her friends almost ill.

"And Claire tells her mother that all the girls have these 'petting parties' that a girl is no longer popular in fact is not wanted unless she does as the rest do; and that many of the girls who indulge in this dangerous pastime are the daughters of women of society educated girls, who set the example to others," Evelyn went on.

"Of course there are many girls daughters of people in moderate circumstances, who take these girls as models, who shape their behavior by what they see them do. I have always regretted my babies died in infancy, it has saddened my whole life, but I'd rather they were where they are than exposed to the temptations of the young girl of today unless I was sure I could keep them clean and whole, some."

Evelyn had spoken with feeling. I wondered if she had heard anything concerning Joan, if she knew anything I said:

"I haven't heard anything of petting parties, Evelyn. I can't believe nice girls would go as far as that. Of course I have read some of the nonsense in the papers, humorous reference to such parties, but have not taken them seriously."

"Well, you should, Ruby. The young boys carry flasks in their pockets and urge the girls to drink with them. Claire told her mother it was done at the most exclusive places, that the boys laugh at prohibition and ape their elders in their efforts to break the law. The world does change! When we were young and that isn't so long ago a young fellow would never have asked a girl to drink, or expected any nice girl to allow him to embrace unless they were engaged.

I knew that at least a part of what she had spoken of so feelingly was true. Knew it to my sorrow. There flashed before me Joan's white face, her distressed eyes, and I felt a recurrence of the fear I had felt the day she came home intoxicated.

Impulsively I said: "I wish I could send Joan away for a time, not that she does the things we have been talking of, but she loves gaiety, goes out a good deal, has friends I know nothing. I think they are all right; but—one never can be sure."

"Let her come to me for a week or two. I should love to have her."

Just then Joan came in and Evelyn asked her to visit them in the country. Joan thanked her very prettily, but said:

"I can't come now. I'm dated up for the next two or three weeks. But I'll come later if I may."

Evelyn acquiesced but I had noticed a strange look on her face when Joan declared she was "all dated up" that made me flush with embarrassment, and—something more.
